With regard, however, to the other Interpreters, we presume nobody imagines their qualifications to be anything, like so extensive as this. But why should the fact be constantly kept in the background? If it were frankly acknowledged, the services of the Interpreters could be turned to useful account by their acting in the Court with the assistance of a native interpreter, both as to viva translation of documents. In the fermer case the Foreign Interpreter could watch and ascertain that the native employed was accurately rendering the questions and answers, though he could not pretend to a sufficient command of this idiom to translate iuto good Chinese on the apur of the moment. In respect to documents the translation could be given in, avowedly as a joint production, and both the foreign Interpreter and his teacher should be questioned—the former, as to what he translated of his own knowledge, the latter, as to such parts as bad been rendered under explanation or assistance. So long as the fiction is main. tained that the European Interpreters are such thorough masters of Chinese as to be able to interpret without the aid of their teachers, we shall be unable even to advance one stage towards remedying the crying evil to do away with which the student interpreters were sent out; and we shall also doubtless have to suffer the annoyance of seeing them drafted off at great expense into offices for which they have little or no special quali- auts until Wednesday, the 7th instant fications. If the plain truth, however, be recognised, there will be no difficulty in finding ample opportunities for "atilising" the acquirements of Messrs, Lister and Wodehouse, who though not capable of acting independently as Interpreters, might be very valuable in affording a guarantee that though native assistance bave to be is in all cases arrived at.

THE REVISED GAMBLING RULES. TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS." Str.—I shall feel obliged by your giving the following a place in your valuable paper, thus drawing the attention of the authorities to the very queen (to say the best) state of the Gambling Laws respecting pervants, as published in the Government Gazette of 18th March list. Early in May last my servant, who was duly registered, after collecting a bill given to him, gambled away the whole sum in a hell in Endicott Lane, and bolted right away to Macao. Due notice of his thus taking French leave of me was given to the police, and the Registrar-General, who buth very gravely took down all the particulars, but who to all appearance did nothing further in the matter afterwards to afterwards, as luck would bave it, a friend mine saw him (the servant) walking quietly on the Prays, and brought him to me. I took him over to the station! from whomes he was sent before the inagistrate, who sent him to tour months' hard labour. As I had heard of servante being forbidden to the hells, I very naturully applied to Mr. Deane to bring to accoun the farmer of the hell for allowing my servant o gamble away my money there; but he acting on the quibble that I was not an European," refused to interfere in the matter; bringing forward as his authority the Revised (P) Rules of section XVIII. of Ordinanue Not 9 of 1867; as published in the Government Gazette of 18th March last, Upon this I applied to the Registrar-General, who after keeping me waiting or more than thirty minutes, condescended to look into the matter, and let me know the result by writing. Not hearing anything of the matter for a fortnight, I called at his office, when I was told by his clerk that the Registrar-General has been forbidden by Government, to whom he had applied for permission, to do anything in the matter; -fearing, no doubt, that the investigation might load to some nigly rerelation in its pet solleme of the bells.

So far the matter ends at spreaent. Why in the name of commun sense should a servant of an European be forbidden the hells, while that away his master's money? It is a matter of deep regret that the Government Gasetts does not give the name of the modest Daniel whose prolific brain devised auch Revised (?) Rules. Is it anything better than a selfish class legislation? Why should an European be more protected by laws from these hells than an Indian ! Does the latter not pay his taxes P Is it because some Hongkong Solon has discovered that the former is more given up to the vice that the latter, and the servants taking after their masters? It may be that the legislators, being themselves Europeans, had before their eyes the old adage "everybody for himself," when revising (?) the said rules; they of course cared very little for the Heathers as long as their pockets were not touched. Apologising for the length, I beg to sub-

CHINESE IN THE COAL MINES. (From the Seran on Republican, April 4th.)

"It is understood that definite propositions have been made to the Directors of the great coal railroads for Chinese labor, on a large scale. for working the Pennsylvania mines. Some of panies the above article refers to, as having received and as now entertaining propositions for baye taken a determined position from the the price of the new Russian Five per Centi-beginning, more so than the public generally Louis is much higher than any of those which have believed, and since the rejection by the were issued in 1867 and 1868." leaders of the Miners' Union of their proposition to arbitrate the mining difficulties, they have become more than ever convinced that new and different measures must be resorted to in order to make their invested capital productive. The three large companies in this region are making out their case; with which to go before the country in any emergency. They point to un outlay of $5871; Benares at $5621 to $585. Little doing $75,000,000 invested in the mining and transportation of coal to tide water. This vast amount of capital has new been idle for more than four months, at a fearful loss to those whose money is bound up in our railroads, canals, coal mines and equipments. Shall they permit the continuance of the present deadlock for an indefinite period to make an effort to render their capital productive? From information which we cannot doubt we are wurranted in making the prediction that work in this region will be resumed not later than the first of June, either by the miners now on suspension or other workmen who will be brought here. This announcement is startling but nevertheless true. We sound a warning note to the miners, and if it is not beeded in season, subsequent developments will prove our position to have been well founded and that our assertion was based on facts. We are impelled to deal plainly and tersely with the subject, for the good of the miners and that of the community at large. The time has come when we believe it to be our duty, as a publicjournal, having the welfare of this section at heart, to urge the men to not ut once and make terms with the companies,

THE INDO-EUROPEAN TELEGRAPH:

About a year ago, England devised the gigantic project of connecting her far-distanti dependencies by magnetic telegraph. The necessity of that master enterprise was apparent. In no other way could England bring her colonies within the bonds of unity, except by a tolegraphic wire. Like a human skeleton, it cannot possibly hold its lose bones together unless they are firmly wired. But it was not governmental policy alone, that induced England to form this grand project: It was Finance and the love of guin which uvged herthe most. She found that since her first experiment in cable laying, she had more than trebled her first investment. Why, should she not then try it again ? But the completion of the Surz Canal, by which the passage to India has become cheaper and more appeditious, has undoubtedly accelerated the projected outerprise, which, according to late accounts, has been nearly brought to a termination. "The Indo-Europenn line, "asysthe London Times, "via Teheran, is in complete working order, between England and India, Bombay and London, insomach that a commercial message baving been sent to Bombay direct by London, at 1.50 F.M., was instantaneously acknowledged." This," continues the Times, " is the first cocasion on which the telegraph has worked direct, without any re-transmission, between England and India. The distance from London to Bombay. by the Indo-European line, is, six thousand

Though the latter show great energy and daring in domestic undertakings, they seem absolutely inort in measures of a foreign nature. They apparently ignore the secret of which England, France and Germany fung to Hongkong morehant. avail themselves so well as to make foreign nations bear the expense of national enterprises. They build and own the lines of communication and transportation for their commerce, remaining thus independent and eafe under contingencies whereas we pay them millions of dollars unusually for the simple use of them. In this manuer we throw our tressure constantly into their lap, receive but little in return, and make the country poorer every year. If such enterprises are profitable to France, England and Germany, why, we ask, would they not be so to America The completion of the Indo-Entopean telegraph, like the Suez Canal, is calculated to render our situation more isolated, and draw away a great part of our commerce and treasure; unless a submarine cable is soon laid between Asia and America. The tariff to be paid for cable despatches from the United States to Asia, by the Indo-European line, will be high and the aggregate yearly amount simply enor-mous; and yet there will be no relief, as the necessity of using the line will be often indispensable. This matter requires the serious. consideration of business men in this and other btates. They must devise a plan by which the project of the American-Asiatic cable may be suon carried into effect. We must have a bill passed by the next Congress granting the right of a cable from San Francisco to China and Japan, such as Nye's bill. After having completed the Pacific and Atlantic Railroud anch! a submarine cable may become a national necessity. When this new grand enterprise supplied at very moderate rates. shall have been completed, and the world surrounded by a magnetic girdle, our city, will be in reality the centre of commerce and telegraphic imperiat quarto.

FOR scope and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Obinese have of late years been compelled to ooin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are bers given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exer-cises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typo-graphy displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond n the size of body, thereby effecting a vant previously attained, and dispensing with those yast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore charabterized Chinese publications. The scope of the work is so great, and its utilitarian purposes so complete, that a reforence to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives thomselves it explains subjects fully, with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in Though I am ignorant how they know my path and track it, yet I suppose that by means of a fulse scent I may be able to throw them out; for this purpose I must go and return upon my steps to decuive them as to the way I take." He shows that an old here pursued by grey hounds which are swift enough to keep her in view and to hunt by eye, not smell, will take her to baffle their eyes; but the same hare, if pursued by barriers, which hant by smell, will keepto the open, because the smell lies much thicker in a wood, where she touches not only the ground, but the sides of the trees. Such a hare must draw her inferences clearly as to the clue HARNESS. by which the dogs pursue her, and atter her mensures for safety accordingly.
